Jonny Briggs, "When something bad happens again, it starts to feel normal" – installation view

"When something happens again it start to feel normal" is a group show including a series of works from international artists engaging directly with the idea of double, repetition and reproduction. The show takes inspiration from an installation by Jonny Briggs created by the artist in 2015; other pieces include a series of portraits of six artists born in the 70's by Patrick Tuttofuoco and three videos from the series "Conversations" by Benjamin Renoux.
